These newsmakers include journalists, public officials, business people, educators and the general public. It encompasses a variety of locations and atmospheres that depict the diverse people and places which make up the Inland Empire, the gateway to Southern California. The subjects range from serious community issues to lighthearted conversation presented in an informative and entertaining style, crafted by host Wallace Allen and his crew of co-producers and on-air cohorts.

'Empire Talks Back' includes the ETB Happy Hour Mixer crowd, not because of its prime afternoon time slot, but because of its live audience of radio listeners and studio participants. Listeners are encouraged to join to the crew at the broadcast site, to meet and greet and to be part of the broadcast. "I believe that every problem has a solution and every solution has a remedy... 'Empire Talks Back' will salute audience members whose comments are deemed 'solutionary' because they make good sense or because they make us laugh," says host Wallace Allen. Allen continues, "And sometimes the only way to make sense of what is going on, is to have a good laugh. Every problem and complaint indirectly frames its own solution, so my ultimate question is, 'So what do you want to do about it???' The response to this challenge will carve out the unique niche that captures and holds the diverse Inland Empire drive time audience.

Bankruptcy or Credit Issues No Longer Means No Mortgage It May be the Best Thing That Could Have Happened to YOU!

clared personal bankruptcy. Many potential home-buyers felt that they must wait at least seven to 10 years after a bankruptcy to be eligible to become homeowners. This is a common misconception.

While some people declaring bankruptcy have trouble managing their money, a large number of those declaring have simply experienced unfortunate events. Americans have been filing bankruptcy at record-high levels over the last five years. Though a bankruptcy is certainly a blemish on a credit report, it does not necessarily disqualify a borrower.

Recognizing that sometimes bad things happen to good people, some select loan officers are becoming more willing to take a calculated risk. Some lenders use a scoring system to determine whether a potential buyer is a worthwhile risk. Unfortunately, bankruptcy gives an automatic low score. However, select lenders are beginning to look beyond the scores and look at the individual in need.

Instead of waiting two or four years after being discharged from bankruptcy, some mortgage professionals are willing to give a home loan much sooner. Those who have declared Chapter 7 bankruptcy liquidation may be eligible for a loan one year after discharge, and those who have declared Chapter 13 may be eligible for a loan even while still reorganizing.

Another common misconception is that a previous bankruptcy on your credit report will require you to have a large down payment and pay extremely high rates and points. There are currently programs available with NO MONEY DOWN with attractive rates and points.

Because of new options, bankruptcy no longer needs to stand in the way of getting a home loan. With the help of more creative lenders, those who have experienced financial difficulty will have an easier time getting a mortgage.

Robert Golyer tells listeners how!

In the past, traditional mortgage lenders have automatically rejected people who had de-

The Many Moods of Vince Daniels

The Many Moods of Vince Daniels airs Saturdays at 10:00 a.m.

'The Many Moods of Vince Daniels', airing Saturdays at 10:00 a.m., is based loosely on my years growing up in Garden Grove, California. Whenever I think about my show, I think about the house that I lived in with my family on Merello Street for so many years. I see how the radio studios are configured, and every time I'm sitting in the on-air booth looking across the glass at guests who are sitting around the table in the adjoining studio, I find myself back home around the old dining room kitchen table.

Any number of folks, who knew that our doors were always open, could stop by and enjoy some pie, coffee, Pepsi and great conversation. If too many people wandered in, we would move our discussions into the family room, where I can still see people sprawled out on bean bag chairs, in a way that showed that they felt comfortable in our home. Nobody judged anyone. We let people speak their minds. Anyone felt free to disagree, but could also lay out the reasons for their disagreement.

There were nights that people came to our doors with tears and anguish. We allowed them to cry, while we listened to their pain and struggles. On occasion we sat around and sang songs together, or we made each other laugh. This would go on sometimes into the wee hours of the morning.

In those days, I always wondered if I turned on a microphone and allowed listeners to eavesdrop on this reality, would make for a good talk and variety show? Nowadays, when somebody admits that they listen to talk radio, the first question is "are you liberal or conservative?"

I dare say that most guests and callers on talk shows don't come on to talk.

They come with an "agenda," and won't leave until they get all 16 points across. Sadly, these days it's easier to label, than it is to listen. In 'olden times' the question wasn't "are you right or left wing?" but was, "do you want to talk about it?"

While 'Moods' may not be "over stimulated" talk radio, it is a place to come to be accepted for who you are and where you are. I think of my time slot as a place you can always come to and feel like you're back home again. We talk about controversial topics that maybe you're afraid to talk about in your own home.

We play snippets of music memories from your life. We take you out to the movies every once in awhile. We help you to figure out complex questions you may have concerning your finances. We listen to peoples' stories. You have a place to pull up a bean bag chair and get comfortable in our family room.

I'll even pick up your empty Pepsi cans after you leave. But once you leave, I hope you'll come back. If there are any topics you don't hear covered on most of talk radio, I will make sure you have a voice... Vince Daniels

'The Prophetic Watch'

Ronnie McMullen of 'The Prophetic Watch'

Talk show host, Ronnie McMullen, of 'The Prophetic Watch,' reveals and exposes truths that mainstream media does not want to address. Known as the "wild" preacher of truth, there is no compromise on this show. Fast paced, in your face, Ronnie boldly attacks the issues at hand. What's the agenda? Who are the puppet-masters controlling... and why? And what's worse, according to Ronnie, wanna-be Christians are sleeping and snoring through the beginning of the great Holy War.

Most preachers do not want to discuss UFOlogy. Ronnie goes... where no preacher wants to go. Find out the truth behind the alien / UFO / fallen angel debauchery. Are we being visited? Or were they here first? You decide. Ronnie unveils hidden mysteries and secrets through the many guests he interviews on air.

Preachers are scared to discuss UFOlogy because they just don't know.

Once KCAA's broadcast day increases to 24 hours in the near future, you can listen to 'The Prophetic Watch' Monday through Friday at 9:00 p.m. for a taste of reality, humor and heart. Have you fallen backwards? Are you not exactly where you need to be? Discover a warrior's heart. Ronnie's soft heart will melt the hardest stone hearts. Learn to be a warrior for God. It's time to wake up and smell the coffee. Buckle up! This could be the ride of your life!
